DR. FREDERICK A. COOK

comes to Statesboro Tuesday, June 10. Illustration of the "My Conquest of the Pole" on the second night of the chautauque. He tells of his trip to the pole—the most wonderful journey since the voyage of Columbus. He will have a great audience. His narrative is illustrated with graphic pictures, thrown upon a screen, so that his audience, in a sense, travels with him to the land of the midnight sun.

Dr. Cook maintains that the only proof of such a quest must be found in the explorer's narrative account. This is now told to an American audience for the first time.

In his lecture Dr. Cook tells a fascinating story of life in the Arctic and the strange people who inhabit the cold world of the aurora; of Eskimo love-making, with a temperature far below zero; of the natives' marriage customs; and the coming of the stork among them.

Dr. Cook tells a story of hardships such as few men ever endured and lived. People thrill with his

FIRST DISTRICT SCHOOL CLOSING SUCCESSFUL TERM

CLOSING EXERCISES MONDAY WERE HIGHLY ENTERTAINING

Monday was a gala day at the Agricultural school, when the last of the exercises of the 1913 commencement were rendered. The exercises were in honor of the graduating class. Four of the young ladies read very practical essays which they had written, showing how the school is teaching home economics, as well as a thorough education.

The literary address, delivered by Rev. Dr. R. L. Bolton, of Milen, was a masterpiece and was greatly enjoyed by those present. Prof. J. Walter Hendricks made a beautiful speech; also Dr. J. L. Lawton Hiers and Dr. A. L. R. Avant, of Savannah. These gentlemen seemed happy over the prosperous condition of the school. Drs. Hiers and Avant paid high com-

WIFE WAS HIDDEN IN THE BACK SEAT GAVE HUSBY AN UNPLEASANT SURPRISE

Macon, May 31.—A well known young business man, with an office in the heart of the city, went home about 7 o'clock a few evenings ago and told his wife that he wanted an early supper. He said that he had a little business engagement, and had to leave in a few minutes. When pressed by his wife as to the nature of the business, he politely, but none the less firmly, declined to say why he had to be away from home for several hours.

After supper he told his wife good-bye, bustled himself about the house for a few minutes, and then went out to the garage, where he had a five-passenger automobile. This gentleman did not examine his machine closely, but cranked it up mounted the front seat and chugged away. His automobile led him to the home of a young lady who happened to be his stenographer—and an attractive looking lady she is, too. The young lady, desiring a cool ride in the automobile in the moonlight and feeling entirely safe and secure in the presence of her employer, accepted the invitation and together they started for a ride.

When several miles from the city limits, Mr. Employer and Miss Stenographer became engaged in a very interesting conversation—so interesting, in fact, that they did not observe Mrs. Employer when she suddenly rose from under a rug in the tonneau. In her hand she held a poker, which she had brought from home. Plying the weapon right and left, she suddenly whacked her husband and his young lady friend over the heads and wherever else she could strike them. It is said that for a few minutes the atmosphere was crowded with excitement.

On the ride back to the city Mrs. Employer sat on the front seat with her husband, still holding the poker, and Miss Stenographer, in tears and greatly chagrined, occupied the back seat. It is said that the husband is still explaining that his intentions were perfectly proper.

Health Certificates for Marriage Licenses

Washington, June 2.—Sex hygiene and the enactment of a law compelling prospective bridegrooms in the nation's capital to secure a certificate of health before a marriage license could be obtained, were subjects of discussion today at a meeting of prominent society women and welfare workers. The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. John Hays Hammond, wife of the mining engineer.

While it was apparent that the women were agreed on the compulsory production of the health certificate by the bridegrooms, there was a difference of opinion as to the method of issuing such a certificate.

One group favored the establishment of a medical board in connection with the health department, while others would leave the matter to any reputable physician. Dr. Eleanor Polkman was on the program as the principal speaker, although Mrs. John A. Logan, Mrs. Howard Bell and other prominent women were prepared to advance their views. Further comment will be held before recommendations are made to congress.

It just naturally exasperates a man to have his time taken by a friend telling about the smart things his children do, when the man being bored wants to tell of the smart things his own children do.

COURT HOUSE IMPROVEMENT POSTPONED TILL NEXT FALL

COMMISSIONERS DECIDE PRESENT CONDITIONS DEMAND CAUTION

At a called meeting of the board of county commissioners held here Tuesday it was decided to postpone till next fall final action in regard to the recently proposed court house improvements.

Though the committee of citizens appointed by the December grand jury to co-operate with the commissioners had been summoned to be present at Tuesday's meeting, there were only two or three present. The matter was discussed by the board and those of the committee who were present in an informal way in the forenoon, and it was pretty generally agreed that the poor conditions for the county do not warrant the assumption of any additional burden upon the people which can be dispensed with so easily as the court house enlargement. At the meeting in the afternoon the resolution was passed to delay action on the matter until September, at which time it is believed that the people will probably be in somewhat better spirits with regard to the future.

The delay of action at the present time does not mean that the enlargement which has been recommended by several grand juries will be abandoned. All the members seem to be agreed that this work should be done. Just what additions are to be made is as yet undecided. At a meeting some months ago plans were tacitly agreed upon, and the architect was instructed to proceed to work them out definitely. As has heretofore been stated, these improvements consisted of an addition on the south side of the present building, to be removed from the old building by a space of 20 feet, this addition to be two stories and to contain four rooms on the ground floor and three on the second. This addition, it has since been decided, would extend almost to the fence on the south side, and would occupy too much of the yard space.

Another suggestion, and which seems to meet with more universal favor, is that the addition be placed on the east side, and to consist of two rooms on each floor. This, it is argued, will leave more room in the yard, and will not disturb the appearance of the lot so much as the first proposed addition; besides which it will not cost more than half as much.

The other proposition, recently developed, to sell the present court house property and reinvest in another part of the city, was discussed by the commissioners only in a casual way. It need scarcely be said that there was no sentiment heard among them in favor of the proposition.

City Court Amendment.

In this issue will be found a notice from Senator-elect Parrish of a proposed bill amending the powers of the city court which he will introduce at the coming session of the legislature.

This is in accordance with the recommendation of the grand jury of this county, and will be of interest to the people. Regarding the wisdom of the amendment there is a division of sentiment. Those who favor it contend that the time of the city court should not be consumed with the trial of trivial cases which could be disposed of as well in the various justice courts of the county, and their contention seems correct. On the other hand, however, there is the fact that there is greater opportunity for delay when the cases are entered in the inferior courts, inasmuch as such cases rarely end with their trial in the justice courts. Not infrequently they are carried from one term to another of the same court for lack of a jury or for one cause or another, and then finally appealed to a higher court on some ground or other. There are two sides to most cases, and there is never good reason why a final verdict should not be reached as speedily as possible for the benefit of both parties to the case. The attorneys seem to believe that the speediest ending can be attained in the higher courts, and they are understood to oppose the proposed amendment to the city court law on the ground that it will delay justice in many cases.

How Are We Better?

Occasional incidents lead us to wonder by what right we claim our civilization to be superior to that of the savage. Such an incident was that which occurred in the South Carolina town of a few nights ago when the negro Austin, wanted for a series of crimes, was handled in a barbarous manner by a crowd of white men. Wounded fatally in the attempt to capture him, the negro died in the hands of his captors on the return to the scene of his crime. Notwithstanding he was dead, he was taken from the hands of the officers there and literally carved to shreds, his head cut off, and his dismembered body covered with trash and partially burned, after which it was taken and hanged in a public street. Admitting that the negro's crimes merited death, and there seems to be no doubt of it, he paid that debt when, after hours of agony, with his stomach perforated by two loads of buckshot and his pleadings for relief ignored by civilized men having him custody, he yielded up his life. The after events did not concern the negro, and were no crime against him. The sufferers were the people who were guilty of them. They will pay the penalty for years to come in the evil effects their action will inevitably have upon the society in which they live. Such acts of vandalism cannot help but lessen the high regard for civilization to which our people lay claim. No act of lawlessness ends with its simple commission, but it lives on and on. It will take the people of South Carolina who participated in the mutilation of the dead negro—not only them, but their fellows far and near who did not—years to overcome the effects of their barbarism. It was not a crime against the dead negro, but against the people who still live and those to come after them. In view of this incident, and others which have fallen under our observation, we might well inquire wherein our civilization is better than that of the savage. Probably only in the sense that these things do not occur as frequently as they do in less civilized countries; but even with that, they occur all too frequently.

RUSTIN'S STUDIO

STATESBORO, GA.

Dr. Thos. E. Green

The closing number of the chaucous—Saturday night, June 14th. Dr. Green comes last but by no means the least. He is one of America's greatest platform orators, one of the greatest and most gifted speakers before the public. His lectures always seek to carry conviction of some great truth and his words are strong and convincing, and his power over an audience is marvelous. His language is fascinating; his illustrations are appropriate, and there is not a dull moment in his lecture. To hear Dr. Green alone is to get full value for your season ticket. Read what some others say of him: "No orator in the land surpasses Dr. Green in richness of voice, in the power and sweep of majestic thought, and in the grandeur of his eloquence. He is a thinker and a poet. He moves, instructs, inspires, uplifts his audience. Never does he disappoint, and always does he measure up to the occasion. I commend him in most enthusiastic terms.—Sam'l McCormick, Pres. West'n University."

START YOUR LIVER. DON'T STOP WORK.

Get a bottle of the pleasant, safe and perfectly harmless Dodson's Liver Tonic, guaranteed to take the place of calomel. Instead of making you feel worse the next day it makes you feel better—and you actually are better, for no remedy in the whole world lives up the liver, regulates the liver and rejuvenates the system any better than this dose.

In Fight With Rooster

Oliver is Second Best

As a result of an encounter with a large Plymouth Rock rooster in his fowl yard a few evenings ago, Mr. E. C. Oliver is carrying his hand in a bandage and is suffering considerably.

While feeding the fowls Mr. Oliver caught one of the hens up in his hands. When she gave the alarm the rooster came full tilt and flew up at Mr. Oliver, planting a spur in the back of his hand and penetrating to the bone. So severe was his suffering that a surgeon was summoned to dress the wound.

No serious consequences are expected to follow, though the wounded man will be more careful of his conduct in future in the presence of the big Plymouth Rock.

Institute Improvements

To be Let Next Friday

On account of the absence of the architect, the contract for the contemplated improvements to the Statesboro Institute building was not let Tuesday as advertised. At that time there were half a dozen bids submitted to the city council, but were held unopened until Friday, at which time it is expected that the architect will be present.

Four of the bids submitted were from home contractors and one each from Dublin and Eastman. The work proposed is to add four rooms to the south side of the present building and to install a steam heating system throughout the entire building. The improvements are expected to cost approximately $10,000.
